"KICKED ABOUT"
Two Reel Century Comedy
With EDLIE CONNOR

From out of the most beautiful home in happy valley comes the frail form of Bette, evidently flung out by his step father. He has neglected a little thing like paying his bills. As her step father gets his hat and coat and goes to the door, he turns to his poor old mother and says "The day will come when you will have to look after the baby."

The frail little girl, Bette, is left a loser, plain, poor, and a very lonely one. In the meantime, the big hearted man who has been her step father, he writes in his big city, "The day will come when you will have to look after the baby."

"KICKED ABOUT"
Two Reel Century Comedy
With EDDIE GORDON

From out of the most 'beautiful home in Happy Valley' comes the frail form of Eddie, evidently flung out by his step father. Eddie has neglected a little thing like paying his board. He has atough time getting his hat and coat and when he succeeds he kisses his kind old mother farewell, takes the bag she offers him and climbs upon the back of the trusty family horse.

The saddle slips off--with Eddie. He uses a ladder, plank, then finally a rope before he succeeds in mounting the huge beast. After riding many days and many nights, he arrives in the big city, asleep on the horse's back. The nag being hungry it eats the flowers off of a fair lady's hat.

Then espying a fruit stand, it ambles over and continues the meal. Eddie falls off and is slammed about by the fruit dealer, who finally turns him over to a cop. The desk sergeant offers him his choice of thirty days in jail or capturing Dynamite Dave.

Dave proves to be a tough customer and Eddie has the time of his life before he finally knocks Dave cold and puts his handcuffs on him. Dave escapes only to be captured again, in a big revolving barred ball. Eddie is rewarded by an assignment on the "Twelve Mile Limit".
